The Salt Hotel: Please do not lick the walls

In the dining room (0)_____ the Salt Hotel of Bolivia, the salt is always (19)_____ the table. In fact, the salt is the table.

Along with photographer Robert Dam, Oddee’s crew went in July 2008 (20)_____ this unique hotel located over the Uyuni Flats – world’s largest salt flat –, in the south-western part of the country.

The hotel (21)_____ built in 1993 by a salt artisan (22)_____ saw a mint to be made in the number of tourists looking (23)_____ places to stay while visiting the flats.

The lodge has 15 bedrooms, a dining room, a living room and a bar.

The buildings’s roof, and bar are built of salt and even the floor is covered with salt granules. The walls are made of salt blocks stuck together (24)_____ a cement-like substance made of salt and water. During rainy seasons, the walls are strengthened with new blocks, while the owners ask the guests (25)_____ avoid licking the walls to prevent deterioration.
